Coup on Honduran president

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — Gen. Oswaldo Lopez Arellano was ousted as president of Honduras today in a bloodless coup linked to a $1.25 million bribe from a U.S. firm trying to get banana taxes lowered, the nation's military rulers announced.

There was no immediate indication of Lopez' whereabouts and rumors circulated that he may have left the country — possibly for Nicaragua.

An official government announcement of Lopez' ouster and his replacement by Col. Juan Alberto Melgar Castro gave no reason for the shuffle.

Alms listed

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actor Robert Redford, a member of the steering committee of the Emergency Task-Force on Energy Options, said today the group has several goals. Among them are creating nation wide car pooling systems and reduction of highway operating costs and other savings. Consumer groups, scientists, business men and environmentalists make up the task force, Redford said.

Western oil firms trying Hanoi

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Western oil companies looking for oil off the South Vietnamese coast secretly have contacted Hanoi and the Viet Cong to inquire about drilling rights, according to industry sources.

"Some of the companies have already contacted Hanoi," one source said. "They are prepared to work under any government so long as they are guaranteed a return on their investment."

Greek youths attack US embassy

ATHENS (UPI) — Hundreds of Greek youths have attacked the American embassy in Athens, smashing windows, throwing paint and setting fires in an outburst of anger over American policy toward their country.

The youths broke through police lines and stormed the building Monday night. They were dispersed with a tear gas bar.

Aid required

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dr. Henry Selden, chairman of the American Academy of Pediatrics' committee on adoption and dependent care, said none of the 1,900 South Vietnamese orphans airlifted to the U.S. show signs of illness for which they would have to be quarantined.

However, he said, many suffer malnutrition and dehydration, making them vulnerable to other illnesses. They will need good diet and proper medical care as a result, he said.

Portuguese conservatives harassed

LISBON (UPI) — The threat of continued left-wing mob violence hampered Portugal's only surviving conservative political party today in the final days of campaigning before Friday's nationwide elections of a constituent assembly.

The Communists stepped up their verbal attacks on the two largest left-of-center parties, accusing them of "reactionary actions."

The conservative Social Democratic party cancelled a meeting Monday night in the northern town of Braga out of fear of violence, but left-wing demonstrators took to the streets anyway and shattered the windows of the party's headquarters.

Viet Reds balk at Premier choice

SAIGON (UPI) — Political sources said today that President Tran Van Huong, in close contact with U.S. Ambassador Graham Martin, had tentatively agreed to name Tran Man Don as premier in hopes he could negotiate with the Communists. But the Communists were balking.

Evacuee backlog builds

By United Press International President Ford said today only the "barest minimum number" of Americans will be left in South Vietnam by tonight, but Saigon dispatches said a huge backlog of Americans and their Vietnamese dependents was building up because of a shortage of planes.

U.S. officials at Clark Air Base in the Philippines said more than 2,500 refugees from Saigon flooded into there during the day and that another 500 were expected tonight. This would almost double the 1,600 figure of Monday. The U.S. Embassy said a tent city there was being expanded to handle 4,000 persons.

Despite the around-the-clock airlift to Clark, a backlog of evacuees has built up in the huge compound of the U.S. Defense Attache Office in Saigon, referred to as "Pentagon East."

By nightfall tonight, close to 1,000 persons were gathered in the area, awaiting flights. One source working with the evacuation program said there was a backlog of about 50 full flights. However, officials would not confirm this. "We're moving them out as fast as possible," one U.S. official said. "We've got far more flights manifested than we have aircraft. These are people who have completed all necessary documentation and are just awaiting transport."

The final staging area for evacuees cleared for departure is a sports complex called the "DAO Activity Section," which is located within the sprawling Tan Son Nhut Air Base area and only a five-minute ride from the city. Some of the evacuees have waited for as long as two days in the area which is without sleeping accommodations and has only a few comfort facilities.

The ratio of Vietnamese leaving appeared to be close to 10 to 1. Most were wives, children, parents and other relatives of departing Americans. But some were not and their status was not clear nor was it explained by U.S. officials.

Ford's statement to Republican congressional leaders was reported by Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill. Anderson also said following a meeting with Ford and key administration aides that the remaining Americans "could be removed in a surgical evacuation measure" — meaning quick action to get them out.

The President, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the Secretary of Defense told us in the Cabinet Room that the U.S. evacuation program has been expedited so that by "close of business today — that's Wednesday morning in Saigon — only the barest minimum number of Americans will be left in Saigon," he said.

The report came after Ford indicated in a television interview Monday night that a large force of American troops might have to return to Vietnam on a short-term, limited purpose to help evacuate Americans.

Hansen plea bargaining dealt with misdemeanors

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, did plea bargain on misdemeanors with the U.S. Department of Justice.

But the congressman did not attempt to shave down any felony charge to a misdemeanor, according to attorneys for Hansen and a spokesman for the justice department.

Hansen was sentenced Friday to serve two months in prison for two misdemeanor violations of the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act.

The jail sentence has prompted widespread charges that Hansen was treated unfairly since hundreds of similar violations have gone unpunished. It also has prompted speculation that the harsh sentence was meted out because the congressman plea bargained down from far more serious charges.

According to Hansen's attorney, John Runft, plea bargaining was conducted on the question of intent.

Hansen, Runft said, would not plead guilty to any charges which stated he intended to commit a violation.

When the accusation of intent was removed, Hansen did plead guilty to the two "technical violations" of the campaign act.

Robert Stevenson, a public information officer for the department of justice, confirmed that Hansen did not attempt to bargain down any felony charge to a misdemeanor. But, other than saying that the government was considering charging Hansen with more than two misdemeanor violations, Stevenson would not detail what the bargaining consisted.

He would not say what other charges were being considered, but did say that none of them were for felonies.

Runft said other charges could have been made on technical violations but only two were "seriously talked about." But, he said, as a result of the negotiations the justice department made no recommendation to jail the congressman.

"I think it was presumed by all that most likely it would be just a fine," Runft said, emphasizing that no promises were made.

Jerome bank pioneer dies

JEROME — A pioneer Jerome banker, Robert W. Williamson, 88, Boise, died Monday morning in Boise following a brief illness.

Mr. Williamson began his banking career in St. Louis, Mo., at the age of 15. He was also employed by a bank in Colorado prior to moving to Jerome in 1900.

Following his move to Idaho, he worked for seven years in the engineering and accounting departments of the Twin Falls Northside Land and Water Co., spending a year in the Jerome State Bank which was owned by the company.

In 1917, Mr. Williamson joined the staff of the old First National Bank in Jerome and remained with the firm when it was sold to the First Security system.

He was manager of the bank for 40 years and was vice president of the First Security Bank of Idaho for 25 years, retiring in 1957. He moved to Boise four years ago.

Viet aid rejected in House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Armed Services Committee today rejected legislation that would have provided $722 million in military aid to South Vietnam.

The action came as both the Senate and House met to consider proposals to allocate millions of dollars in humanitarian and evacuation aid funds and authority to use U.S. troops in evacuation operations.

Meanwhile, the administration said that a "skeleton" crew of 1,500 Americans will be remaining in South Vietnam by later today, which is the minimum needed to maintain scaled-down U.S. operations there.

The number of Americans still in South Vietnam, which has been a source of concern to Congress, came from two sources — President Ford and Assistant Secretary of State Philip C. Habib.

Republican congressional leaders said Ford told them at a White House breakfast meeting that those staying behind are the "barest minimum number" required. Sen. Clifford Case, R-N.J., told newsmen that Ford said that "about 1,500 Americans would be left in Saigon by this evening," which was the "minimum number to carry on a skeleton operation."

Habib, in a report to a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, agreed that 1,500 was the figure and also said that the military situation around Saigon seemed to have stabilized somewhat, congressional sources said. They quoted Habib as saying the Americans would be down to that number by noon EDT.

The House Armed Services Committee action came on a vote of 21-17. The panel approved a motion to table the legislation made by Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss.

The legislation would have provided $422 million in new military aid in addition to $300 million already authorized but not appropriated.

On April 10, Ford asked Congress to grant South Vietnam $722 million in immediate additional military aid to help Saigon offset the current Communist attack there.

After his White House meeting, Case said he believed a $300 million bill for evacuation and humanitarian relief for South Vietnam would clear the Senate, but Rep. John Anderson, R-Ill., warned that Congress is not inclined to provide further military aid to Saigon.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield voiced concern over the large number of South Vietnamese involved in evacuation efforts out of Saigon.

Citing reports from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines that the ratio of South Vietnamese to Americans is running at least 10 to 1 and possibly 20 to 1, Mansfield said this "raises some interesting questions."

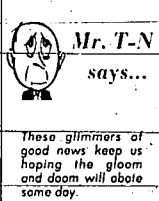

He would not elaborate but said the high ratio of South Vietnamese involved in the evacuation concerns him, especially considering Ford's request for virtually unlimited military support to complete the Saigon evacuation.

The Clark Air Force Base officials said most of the South Vietnamese were dependents of departing Americans.

Congress, which Ford said failed to provide fast military aid to South Vietnam and led to the country's virtual collapse, was moving on several fronts on Ford's requests for additional military and humanitarian assistance.

Senate panel OK's Viet evacuation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved an administration request to evacuate up to 150,000 Vietnam and Cambodia refugees whose lives would be endangered by a Communist takeover.

Mr. T-N says...

These glimmers of good news keep us hoping the gloom and doom will abate some day.

Reds put squeeze on Saigon

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist forces advanced on Saigon from two sides today and launched ground and shelling attacks against South Vietnam's major air base at Bien Hoa, 14 miles north of the city. The sounds of an exploding ammunition dump there rattled windows in downtown Saigon.

Government troops beat back the ground assault at Bien Hoa. But the Communists fired at least 20 rounds of artillery into the base, which is the headquarters of the South Vietnamese forces in the Saigon area. The shelling closed one of two runways.

Vietnamese air force sources said a C130 Hercules cargo plane converted to a bomber hit a small ammunition dump while trying to bomb Communist ground forces, setting off an explosion that could be heard in downtown Saigon. The sources said the explosion was touched off by a single 750-pound bomb.

The threat to Bien Hoa has forced the government to move most of its air force to Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base just outside the city.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel said tight-bombing operations out of Tan Son Nhut — site of a massive U.S. air evacuation — struck along the new northern defense line at Hung Nghia, just east of Bien Hoa, bombing Communist troop concentrations on both sides of Highway 1.

US price rise slowing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer prices in March rose 0.3 per cent, the smallest increase in 20 months, the Labor Department said today.

The government statistics were another encouraging indication that the nation is gaining the upper hand in the battle against inflation.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics attributed the moderated increase in the Consumer Price Index to lower mortgage interest rates and food prices, particularly beef, eggs and sugar.

The food price index declined 0.3 per cent, the biggest decline since an 0.3 per cent drop in February, 1967. The last time the food price index declined at all was in July, 1974, when the drop was 0.4 per cent.

The 0.3 per cent rise in the CPI was the smallest since an 0.3 per cent climb in July, 1973 when wages and price controls were in effect.

During the past three months, prices have risen at an annual rate of 6.6 per cent, the smallest three-month increase since May, June and July of 1973 when the rate increased 5.5 per cent.

The CPI for March stood at 157.8 which means that a selection of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 cost $157.80 in March.

In another separate report, the Labor Department said the average weekly earnings of workers was down 0.4 per cent from February after adjustments for price increases.

The decline was based on a shorter work week and higher consumer prices which had a greater impact than raises received by workers.

The slowdown in prices as measured by the CPI was attributed partly to food prices that went down in March instead of going up as they usually do.

Chrysler drops dividend

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. directors have voted to omit the regular 35-cent dividend for the second quarter in a row — a move expected in the wake of a continuing red ink performance by the No. 3 automaker.

The dividend omission will mean another $81,000 that Chrysler will have to retain in company coffers.

The action to omit the dividend was taken last Wednesday after a stormy annual meeting at which many stockholders criticized the company's top executives for their performances.

Several retirees complained the loss of dividends had cut deeply into their income.

Chrysler will report its second quarterly financial results early next week. Wall Street analysts said the after-tax loss for the first three months of 1975 was about $93 million — a figure even higher than the record $73.3 million deficit in the fourth quarter of 1974.

Following — that loss — directors voted in February to eliminate the dividend in the first action of its kind by Chrysler since the waning days of the Great Depression in 1938.

At the stockholders' meeting, Chairman Lynn Townsend said Chrysler expects to show a modest profit again by the final quarter of 1975. He said the dividend would be resumed as soon as possible after company operations became profitable.

Each of the four U.S. auto companies has either cut or eliminated its dividend in the wake of 1974's financial results — the worst for the "Big Three" since the 1958 recession. With the exception of General Motors, all will report losses for the first three months of 1975, analysts say.

GM trimmed its regular dividend from 81 cents to 60 cents, Ford cut 30 cents from its regular 40-cent quarterly dividend and American Motors eliminated its regular 10-cent semiannual dividend.

Court reviewing death sentences

Washington Star

WASHINGTON — With little passion, and showing more interest in technical than in constitutional theory, the Supreme Court has begun its new review of the power to put criminals to death.

For just short of 90 minutes Monday, all nine justices listened, asking few questions, as three lawyers argued the constitutionality of capital punishment.

Spectators, filling the courtroom to overflowing, sat silent throughout but seemed even quieter than usual when, at one point, the court's only black justice asked an apparently angry sequence of questions about the role of blacks in North Carolina's legal system.

Justice Thurgood Marshall's probing stirred the state's deputy Atty. Gen. Jean H. Benoy to proclaim that there is "not one aspect of racial overtones" in the way this state handles criminal cases.

Benoy also insisted that "North Carolina takes no back seat to any state on the face of this earth in its sense of decency."

At one point in the exchange, Marshall and Benoy got into a dispute over Benoy's use of "negatives" but that passed quickly. Only six justices asked questions. Justice William O. Douglas, who left Walter Reed Army Medical Center to come to the hearing, remained at the bench throughout, saying nothing.

The court is expected to cast at least a preliminary vote on the case Wednesday afternoon in a private session. A final decision probably will not come until shortly before the court recesses in June.

Monday's hearing produced far less rhetoric from the lawyers than usually comes when a major test case is before the highest court.

Benoy moved through his points methodically, stopping twice along the way to say out loud "Let's see," to check where he was in his notes.

The lawyer argued against any capital punishment, Stanford University Prof. Anthony Amsterdam delivered his points in a rapid-fire, nasal style that the justices did not even attempt to interrupt with questions for the first 15 minutes.

The U.S. government's chief spokesman in the court, Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, offered his support for retaining the death penalty in a brief appearance.

Basques accused

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — Suspected Basque separatists shot a policeman to death today in a Bilbao suburb, the fourth such slaying in the restive Basque provinces in four months.

The slaying bore strong similarities to the earlier assassinations of three policemen by separatists in other Basque towns, police sources said.

Police blamed the slayings on "Basque Homeland and Liberty," an underground separatist organization known by the initials ETA.

ETA is the guerrilla arm of the separatist movement in the northern Basque provinces which border on France.

Laos Reds advance

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Loyalist troops have abandoned to the Communists an important junction on the road between Vientiane and the royal capital of Luang Prabang, Defense Minister Sishouk Na Champassak said today.

Sishouk, a loyalist (rightwing) member of the coalition government, said North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao troops firing 85 millimeter field artillery and 82 mm mortars forced the troops back Monday from the junction at Sala Phou Koun, about 90 miles north of here.

He said they fell back about four miles to the south on Highway 13, which runs between the administrative and royal capitals.

Fighting has been going on in the area for the past week. Loss of the junction cuts off the land route to Luang Prabang and observers here saw little chance of the loyalists regaining it.

The location is of importance as a road junction. Highway 7, which joins 13, is little more than a dirt track through mountainous country to the east of Sala Phou Koun, but it leads toward the Communist-controlled Plain of Jars region.

Fire house site set for parking

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The old Twin Falls fire station will soon be demolished to make way for more downtown parking.

Twin Falls City Council members voted five to two Monday night to raise the structure and convert the property to parking for leased spaces.

The land will accommodate about 18 spaces. City Manager Jean Millar said. He said there is a long waiting list of persons wishing to lease downtown parking. These are mostly employees and the space should free some meter spots for shoppers, he said.

Councilmen Henry Woodall and Dr. Stephen Lincoln voted against tearing down the old building until further study has been made as to the possibility of converting it for city storage.

Fire Chief Bobby Bopp told the council the building, erected in about 1909, was condemned in 1948 and had been maintained the past year on a "get by" basis only. He said the basement walls are made of rock and many of the rocks have crumbled and fallen out. A cornice on the top of the building was partially removed a year ago when it cracked and firemen feared it might fall to the sidewalk, endangering the public.

The fire department moved into a new building earlier this year adjacent to the city hall. Since that time the old station has been unused except for gasoline pumps there which will be moved.

The council granted a conditional use to Tom White for property on Flarer Avenue East for construction of a fourplex and a duplex. Action followed a public hearing in which several residents appeared to ask for specific conditions but did not protest the proposal.

The developer will be required to provide a paved drive and parking lot and to maintain a driveway width of at least 30 feet for a distance of at least 300 feet to accommodate traffic in and out of Flarer Avenue. The property is located near the high school. The council also voted to annex Orchard Drive from Washington Street east to permit the Twin Falls County Highway District to apply for federal secondary funds for improvement of the route.

This is part of the proposed trans-county highway and must be entirely in the highway district jurisdiction to qualify for funding. Kenneth Poe, chairman of the Twin Falls Highway District board, attended the meeting.

The council also voted to participate in a national flood insurance as a sponsor. This will permit a federal agency study of flood levels and hazard areas in the city, allowing property owners in these areas to qualify for flood insurance and federal housing loans.

After lengthy discussion the council voted by a three to four count in favor of participating in a University of Idaho-sponsored youth program this summer. The council favored employment of three students for six months maximum.

The students will work with the county city planner and the city Community Development Project director to complete surveys for the comprehensive plan and for the Rock Creek area study.

Cost will be $1,800, or half of the total project participation salaries. The county will pay half of the cost of $200 per month per student and the remainder is provided by the university.

Councilman Paul Ostyn objected to sharing the workers with the joint city and county planning office, saying the city is already paying its share of costs on the comprehensive plan and has been guaranteed completion of the plan under existing arrangements. Joining Ostyn in voting against the motion were Dr. Lincoln and Mayor Jones.

MV views sought May 7 at conference in TF

TWIN FALLS — A conference on "Idaho's Tomorrow" will be held in Twin Falls May 7 at the College of Southern Idaho.

The purpose of the conference is to get grassroots input about Idaho, according to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus. He will address the meeting at about 10 a.m.

Regional coordinators for the conference are Marge Slotten and Mike Gray of Twin Falls. Representatives from Cassia, Twin Falls, Blaine, Jerome, Lincoln, Blaine, Camas and Gooding counties are working with them on plans.

In a statement, Andrus said "We hope we will have as wide a representation as possible from the eight counties in the South-Central Idaho region."

"What we want is to hear from the people themselves their desires for Idaho's future. Their views are important in the long-range planning that will determine what our state will be 20 years from now."

Five other regional conferences are being held throughout the state. A statewide conference was held earlier this year in Boise.

"These regional conferences are a second step in our efforts to get citizen input into our planning. The first session was very important in getting a broad view from citizens. Now we must be more specific," Andrus said.

"And to do that we need the people at the grassroots to tell us what they are thinking, what they like and what they don't like about Idaho now and what changes they would like to see in the future," Andrus added.

Kite fly set Sunday

TWIN FALLS — A kite fly will be held Sunday a few miles southeast of Twin Falls.

The event, jointly sponsored by the Magic Valley Aero-Model Club and the YMCA, will include a model airplane flying exhibition and several kite contests. The exhibition will start at 1 p.m. and the kite contests at 2 p.m.

The contests will include the highest flying kite, the largest home-made kite that flies, the smallest home-made kite that flies and the first kite to rise against the contestants. Special awards will be given to the oldest and the youngest kite flier.

A $25-cent donation will be requested from all who want to try for an airplane ride around Magic Valley. Proceeds from these donations will go toward building YMCA's swimming pool.

Girl Scout council seeks okay on encampment site

BOISE (UPI) — The Silver Sage Girl Scout Council wants to borrow a meadow at the Old Penitentiary for an encampment in June 1976 for Idaho and the Eastern Oregon states to celebrate the bicentennial.

"First, we have to make sure we can use the site," said Barbara Foley, executive secretary for the scout council. The site director of administration, D. E. "Skip" Chilberg, said he will put the proposal before the State Land Board for approval at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon.

If the plan is approved, the council estimates 1,500 girls would camp out on the old prison grounds for 34 days June 17-20 to share with each other and the public some of the things that the Girl Scouts have done for the bicentennial. "We are honoring the heritage of the State of Idaho and Oregon and heroines of the past present and future... and we hope to put on some displays and demonstrations of Girl Scout programs to the public," she said.

Chilberg said he would ask the Land Board for authority in drawing up contract agreements.

"I've already talked with the governor about it and he's all for it," Chilberg said.

Foley said the council is looking at bicentennial projects to honor women of the past and present, born in Idaho or the council jurisdiction, "who we feel have contributed to the state, their local communities and nation."

Reading group sets meet

TWIN FALLS — The next meeting for all "friends of reading," sponsored by the Magic Valley Chapter of the International Reading Association, will be held May 1.

The meeting will be conducted in room 117 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho from 7:30-9 p.m.

The association's goal is to "involve all of the community in promotion of development of reading skills for all people."

Reading has become a survival skill, the association states.

Members include parents, school administrators, community volunteers and teachers.

After a brief business meeting, the group will break up into two 35-minute discussion sessions. During the first session, members will have the opportunity to hear a symposium on open schools moderated by Pat Chitty, Rupert, or participate in groups discussing varied student reading levels with reading specialist Cathy Talkington, Twin Falls, or creative writing, Esther Whiting, Rupert.

The second session groups will consist of a panel on parent-volunteers led by Mrs. Judy Schales, Twin Falls; a workshop on practical presentations for the elementary classroom given by seven classroom teachers, and a demonstration on improving skills through an interesting inventory conducted by Cathy Talkington.

All interested persons are urged to attend. For more information, contact Marilyn McMath at CSI, phone 733-9554, ext. 296.

TF Hotline receives 200 monthly calls

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Hotline is averaging about 200 calls per month, its sponsoring organization was told Monday night.

Cliff Shebley, current director of the crisis telephone service, told the Twin Falls County Mental Health Association board members that about 30 volunteers who are screened and trained before they can answer the telephone calls each evening.

He credited skilled training on the part of the operators with helping to avoid possible tragedy in connection with several drug overdose cases recently. He said the Hotline receives about five suicide calls each month also.

The volunteers are divided into junior and senior operators. Shebley said, with the more experienced operators working with each junior operator.

He said there are five active committees concerned with screening volunteers, advertising, recruiting volunteers, keeping the list of backup professional referrals updated and scheduling of volunteers.

He said the Hotline operation has need of a large file cabinet or desk which can be locked so the phones and files can be kept safe. Anyone interested either in volunteering or having such equipment to donate is asked to contact Shebley at 734-2353.

Mrs. Opal Billings, Co-chairman with Mrs. Francis Harris, chairman of the Community Friends project, told board members that volunteers in this program will meet at 4 p.m. Wednesday at the Child Development Center to hear Dennis Murray, director of the mental health center, speak.

She said the Community Friends volunteers have branched out from helping patients returning from State Hospital South, Blackfoot, and have provided transportation, encouragement and friendship to local persons in rest homes in the community as they are aware of the need.

Plans were discussed for the mental health association's annual membership dinner which will be April 30 at 7 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho cafeteria with Dr. John Ashley, Boise, as speaker. He is state health officer.

Tickets for the dinner will be $3.50 and are available from board members. Reservations must be made by Monday with Rev. Robert Van Nest, President, or by calling the First United Presbyterian church, 733-7023.

WILL A HEARING AID HELP YOU?

Be Positive!

Don't let your hearing loss limit your life. Rent A Hearing Aid That Helps Reduce Competing Sounds

For years many hearing aid wearers have complained that in most communications situations, competing sounds drown out the voices they want to hear. This is because of the way the ear hears sound. The ear hears all sounds at once, but the brain can only process one sound at a time. This is why you often hear a loud noise and then realize you've missed what someone was saying.

At this event proposed for the prison site next year, they hope also to have some sort of patriotic event, using flags, "and we are encouraging communities if they don't have them to develop city or community flags. This again would require some sort of study into the heritage. And we will ask all the troops to bring American flags with them."

Mrs. Foley said there are a lot of proposals in the development stage that have not been announced yet to our people. "Many of the plans will be made public at a delegate council April 29 in Mountain Home.

Chilberg said the special events suggested for the encampment include a plan by the Mountain Home scouts to ride to the area on a covered wagon.

Educational reforms need more than cops, glass

WASHINGTON — A Senate subcommittee last week released a sickening report — no other adjective will do — on violence and vandalism in our public schools.

But the subcommittee offered few thoughts on why these conditions exist, and it had nothing at all to say on how these conditions might best be relieved.

Admittedly, this was a preliminary report — further hearings will be conducted. But when a congressional body concludes that "violence and vandalism has reached a level of crisis," it is not unreasonable to ask that at least preliminary remedies be recommended. This Judiciary subcommittee, headed by Birch Bayh of Indiana, has been studying the problem for four years. How long, O Senator, how long?

The evidence compiled by the subcommittee drawn from 750 school districts around the country, is enough to turn one's stomach.

In a single school year, some 70,000 teachers are seriously injured in attacks by students. The United Federation of Teachers has had to issue a booklet to its women members, suggesting how they may defend themselves against the student bent on rape.

In one district after another, school officials report murder, violent assault, gang warfare, burglary, extortion, and arson. In Birmingham, so many school officials began carrying guns for self-defense that the school superintendent had to issue licenses. In Houston, the cost of school security officers jumped from $20,000 in 1972 to $380,000 in 1973.

The schools of Los Angeles report one "gun incident" every other day. In 1971-72, warfare among the city's estimated 60 gangs saw 25 students dead, one of the latest Los Angeles gangs called the Crips. The Crips also have two auxiliary units — the Cripettes, composed of girl members, and the Junior Crips, made up of elementary school children.

Los Angeles is not alone in having trouble with grade-school criminals. In Winston-Salem, three third-grade pupils were charged with extorting nearly $1,000 from a couple of classmates. Two of the boys were nine years old, the third eleven.

From one end of the country to the other, the subcommittee's findings form an appalling pattern: terrified teachers, imperiled principals, hostile pupils. The cost in human misery cannot be reckoned. Neither can a price tag be placed on the educational losses that occur when teaching yields to disorder.

Costs in dollars can be roughly computed. The District of Columbia spends $622,000 a year to replace broken windows. Memphis pays its school vandalism bill at $1 million annually. Los Angeles pays $2 million. Chicago, $1 million. Salt Lake City reports a $400,000 price: enough to run two elementary schools for one year. New York City pays $13 million to station police in schools.

A conservative guess, for the country as a whole, is $300 million a year, equivalent to the amount spent on textbooks.

A part of the "why," in the subcommittee's view, lies in racial tensions made worse by racial-balance busing. Drugs figure importantly in the dismal picture.

My own guess, from some years of contemplating public education, is that one of the root causes in the universal requirement of compulsory school attendance. If compulsory school laws were repealed, or amended to admit children only to age 12, the schools would be relieved of many uneducable louts who disrupt the learning process for everyone else. Then, if child labor laws were revised so these louts could be put to honest work, as in Europe, still more good might be accomplished.

This is millennial vaporing. The trade unions and do-gooders never would agree to such modest reforms. In the end, the subcommittee will recommend $10 billion in federal anti-vandalism grants to be spent on tough cops and unbreakable window glass.

If we are not to rear an urban generation of educational Crips and Cripettes, we will have to do better than that.

Reporters' sources key to information

If free people in a Democracy are to govern themselves well they must have free access to information. A free man without accurate information cannot often act in his own best interest.

There are a number of ways a citizen can obtain information, including his first-hand experience, education, conversation from friends. These are indispensable.

Another important avenue of information is the output of professional news reporters. A reporter not only uses his eyes and ears like any other citizen, but he has special tools for gathering information about stories that are particularly difficult to obtain.

One of the reporter's best tools is his ability to keep a confidence. A reporter who earns the trust of his news sources is able to obtain information that otherwise would be locked away.

A good example of accurate stories gathered from confidential sources involves the Washington Post's coverage of Watergate. Much of the Watergate story would not have come to light had it not been for the information fed to Post reporters Woodard and Bernstein from well-placed sources within the Nixon administration.

Without the confidence of those sources in the reporters' willingness to keep a confidence, there would have been no story, and the "reliable sources" would have dried up.

So it is in the interest of a free people needing accurate information to protect a professional reporter's ability to keep his confidences.

Unfortunately there are enormous pressures on reporters to divulge their confidential sources. A recent example involves Idaho's Jay Shelley, an investigative reporter working for the Lewiston Morning-Tribune.

District Judge Roy Mossman ordered Shelley to identify a police source quoted in a story. The information was pertinent to a libel suit against the newspaper, the Judge said.

Shelley refused. So Mossman ordered him to spend up to 30 days in jail to loosen his tongue.

Presumably the sentence could be repeated again and again as Shelley is released from jail, brought before the judge and again refuses to betray his source.

Shelley really has no choice but to go to jail again and again. If he talks he will no longer be considered trustworthy, effectively ending his promising career.

This kind of bind has occurred before in other professions. Doctors, lawyers and clergymen have long insisted on their right to maintain the confidence of their clients. Eventually society has agreed that professional trust should be protected, and provided accordingly.

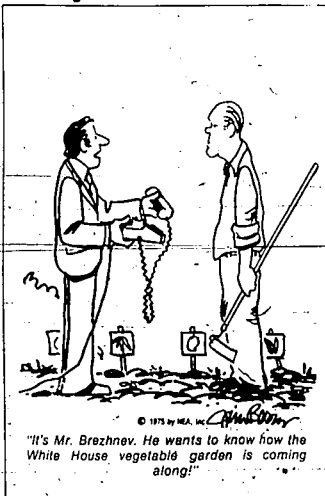

To a free society accurate information is no less important than good medical care, good legal advice or frank talk with clergymen.

If reporters like Shelley stick by their guns long enough there is a good chance similar protection will be extended to the professional information gatherer.

Fuel taxes dangerous

Editor, Times-News:
An open letter to Rep. At Ullman, Chairman, House Ways and Means Committee:
I believe that the committee which you chair has under active consideration legislation which would impose an additional tax on gasoline used as motor fuel. Before such a tax is imposed on the American people the following factors should be given full and careful consideration.
Many millions of Americans earn their daily bread as salesmen. Most of these salesmen are dependent upon their automobiles in order to cover their territory and make effective contacts with their clients and prospects.

If the cost of gasoline which is a major cost item to them, is increased, they will be forced to take one of several actions. They can curtail the amount of travel, thus reducing their efficiency and resulting in lower sales at a higher sales cost. This will result in additional slow-downs in business and even more inflation. Neither of these are desirable results for the American people.

They may attempt to do more selling by mail or telephone. These are, of course, valid selling tools but are most effective when used in combination with face to face contacts. In the long run the lack of ability to make such personal contact will result in reduced sales and hence additional slow-downs in business.

They may continue to work as hard, drive as much, and hence contribute to the maintenance and growth of the business volume which is so vital to our continued economic health. If they do this they must pass on to the ultimate consumer of the products or services they sell the additional costs involved. As you and your committee are aware, I am sure, one dollar of cost passed thru is not just one dollar but something more than one dollar added to the retail price.

The net result would therefore be not a reduction in gasoline use but rather an addition to the inflationary pressure on the economy.

It is true that we have paid federal gasoline taxes in the past. There have been however two important differences: first they represented a minor portion of the total price. Second, the funds thus raised were used to construct the present freeway system which improved the efficiency and lowered the actual cost of travel.

The primary needs of this country are a return to a sound economy without inflation and continued economic growth. I earnestly urge you and your committee not to create a gasoline tax structure which would have the opposite effect.

Security agencies needed

Editor, Times-News:
The recent controversy over CIA should make people wonder what really motivates some of our politicians.

Just as an escaped convict might wish that bloodhounds didn't exist, so it is with the Communists and their comrades in our country in regard to the CIA or any other organization which stands between them and world conquest.

To begin with, allowing the Communists to run free in our country compares to a group of chicken farmers deciding that they should leave their chicken houses doors open so as not to discriminate against the skunks and foxes.

Granted that the farmers have foolishly done this so now they must have trained guard dogs to keep the skunks and foxes in line. What if some of the farmers try to put the dogs on short chains and try to pull their teeth? We might conclude that they were either skunks in disguise or close friends of the skunks.

Freedom was meant for those who believe in it, not for those who believe in destroying it. There are plenty among us who do just that if we let them.

More than ever we need our national security agencies as they are the watchdogs who understand the nature of these skunks who would destroy our way of life.

Clearly, what is happening here is a case of

"give the Communists an inch and they'll try for a mile."

If we feel that we as individuals can do nothing then we should at least give our support to those who are trying to do something and we can oppose those who are obviously doing our country wrong.

It has been suggested that some of us go to extremes with our suspicions where the Communists are concerned. Possibly, but you can't watch a fox in a chicken house too closely.

If we lived in a field where we knew there were poisonous snakes we'd be foolish if we didn't look for snakes in the grass, although if their actions sometimes make their presence quite obvious.

Most of us try to avoid at all cost, doing something for which we might be labeled extremist, radical, paranoid, hysterical, etc. That would never do, would it?

Are we men or are we mice? Will we be defeated by words alone? It's worth remembering that words were meant to be used by men and not the other way around.

P.S. I apologize to all chicken farmers for any degrading comparison. Also to the natural predators referred to here.

Why reversal?

Editor, Times-News:
To quote the UPI (page 1, T/N, April 17) Judge George Hart Jr. warned the jury "to consider carefully the testimony of Jake Jacobsen" who said he gave Connally payoffs.

"John Connally hasn't a chance," I thought, after reading this.

But Connally was lucky enough to have a jury trial, and even in hostile Wash., D.C., they could find no cause, and he was acquitted.

Poor Cong. George Hansen was not that lucky! He has had neither a jury trial nor could he afford expert legal advice. He has been the underdog from the start.

The voters of Idaho looked at the facts before the election. They judged George worthy of this seat. In spite of all the bad publicity and they put him in! They remembered how well he had served them before.

Why should some Washington, D.C., judge who couldn't affect Connally's case, now nullify the verdict of the voters of Idaho?

Facts confused

Editor, Times-News:
Open letter to Richard Simpson, US Consumer Safety Commission:

According to an article by Nancy Hips of the New York Times there have been almost 10,000 homicides in the US where handguns have been involved. She also seemed to think that we could have the same low rate of death by handguns that Japan enjoys, just by following their example in disarming their people.

Well, she has her facts slightly confused. In the first place the Japanese people have always been one of the most law-abiding people on the earth. At one time, not so long ago it was a capital offense for one Japanese to strike another in the face with his fist.

Prior to World War II the Japanese people were told to register all of their firearms with the chief of prefecture (county office). This they did, consequently when we occupied Japan we took the prefecture's lists and we disarmed the Japanese people, even to the extent that as late as 1958, the farmers were unable to protect their sweet potato harvest from the wild hogs. I have personally seen many farmers have their entire crop wiped out in one night by herds of the wild hogs.

Now Mr. Simpson, the name of your committee is Consumer Product Safety Commission. In a recent article by John F. McManus there are 900,000 legal abortions performed in the US annually.

If we could pass a law or something to outlaw or to confiscate all doctors' instruments and medications, we could save most of those 900,000 defenseless human beings that are now being destroyed. That makes as much sense as taking away our armor and bullets and would save nine times more lives.

Only 0.2 percent of the handguns in this country are used to commit murder, according to Senator McClure, so let's get tough, really tough like the Japanese, and eliminate those that use those 0.2 percent.

Consider the doughnut

Editor, Times-News:
This has reference to the 60 day jail sentence given Congressman George Hansen by Judge Hart in Washington, D.C. a day or so ago.

This sentence given our Rep. George Hansen was, in my opinion, a grave and severe miscarriage of justice. He has been crucified by the Eastern Press and I might add by the Eastern Judiciary. If Steve Symms can be believed, and I think he can, Teddy Kennedy was a year late in making his filing a year or so ago. Nothing to date has been heard about this.

This law is a very technical one and has been violated, without meaning to do so, hundreds of times by other members of Congress.

The Eastern Judiciary has just made an example of George Hansen and I think all Republicans should rally around George and sustain him in his hour of troubles.

Let's look at the good things about this man — rather than this one technical violation. Let's look at the doughnut, rather than the hole in the doughnut.

N-weapon use question

Editor, Times-News:
The situation in Vietnam looks bad. There are crucial issues which must be decided on whether to use the atomic bomb or not.

This is the basic law of nature "survival of the fittest." Did Truman go wrong by using the bomb to stop the war with Japan?

Why are we fighting in Asia? Ray Tucker said it back in the fall of '52. He wrote in the Times-News that September, 1952, is a date to be remembered. Our state department signed a treaty on September, 1952, whereby we took over the policing of the world, militarily, financially and economically.

In this treaty we guaranteed to maintain the status quo of the British Empire. This treaty compares with the treaty signed by England in 1815 at the Congress of Vienna when England took over the white man's burden of ruling the world.

Since Ike has just been elected president it becomes his duty to sell this program to the American people (end of quote).

But he didn't do it. He and Dulles were planning on helping the French in Laos but General Ridgeway (their commander in Korea) talked them out of the notion.

He said the French were too long, harbors too poor to land the supplies and men. He said any expedition into the interior of China could only end in disaster.

Word sought

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. Frederick C. Weyand, Army chief of staff, said Monday the United States knows that the View Cong is holding the remains of 57 US military personnel lists as missing in action but refuses to release them.

We must press for an accounting," Weyand told the House Appropriations Committee. He said he saw no reason why, if the South Vietnamese government enters into negotiations with the Communists, that this subject could not be raised.

Demos have been Idaho's 'third party'

(Editors note: In his soon-to-be-published book "Idaho Election Trends," Dr. Boyd A. Martin examines third-party participation in Idaho's political history, particularly the ready acceptance by Idaho voters to minority movements. This is the second of a three-part series based on Martin's findings.)

By LINDY HIGH
News Bureau

MOSCOW — Idaho is not exactly locked into a non-existence-Democratic two-party system. In fact, the Democratic party at three times was the "third party" in the state.

Dr. Boyd A. Martin, former University of Idaho faculty distinguished professor of political science, has completed his massive "Idaho Election Trends" and expects the work to be published this spring. His findings indicate Idahoans are unusually receptive to third-party movements and those movements have contributed much to shifts in major party alignment in the state.

In 1892, for instance, Idaho gave its electoral vote to People's Party presidential candidate James Weaver and four years later gave the nod to William Jennings Bryan, who carried every county in the state — 78 percent of the vote — running on both the Democratic and People's Party tickets.

More recently, American Party presidential candidate John Schmitz won up to 29 percent of the votes cast for president in some of the Idaho counties, getting the largest percentage of his total national vote from Idaho.

In fact, Martin has found that third and minor parties "have played a significant role" in Idaho's political history, in a period of 84 years — including 41 state-wide elections — 17 third or minor parties have entered elections and both the Prohibition Party and the Socialist Party have offered slates in 13 elections.

At one time, particularly before the New Deal, the Socialist Party polled from 6 to 14 percent of the total vote in each election. The People's Party was strong enough in 1894 to reduce the Democrats to third-party status.

The most striking result of third and minor parties, according to Martin, has been the great number of minority winners, noting Idaho has had long periods when more people voted for candidates losing than those winning.

According to Martin, the roots of the third-party response lie in the traditional independence of the Idaho voter, the voter's attraction to a candidate on a personal level and typically highly selective voting pattern.

Third party movements have had an impact on political realignment in Idaho, beginning

In 1892, for instance, Idaho gave its electoral vote to People's Party presidential candidate James Weaver and four years later gave the nod to William Jennings Bryan, who carried every county in the state — 78 percent of the vote — running on both the Democratic and People's Party tickets.

In 26.33 percent of Idaho's state-wide elections since statehood, winning parties and candidates received less than half the total vote, March said.

Just over a third of the elections have been two-party contests and in 1952 and again in 1968 there were more than two candidates for president on the ballot.

On the one hand, minority party involvement means eight governors, six congressmen, three US Senators and two presidential candidates have been elected in Idaho with less than half the vote. But the same voters have given landslide victories to appealing candidates — Borah in 1924, Eisenhower in 1952, Frank Church in 1968 — who manage to win irrespective of the fate of their party.

Church plan probed

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — State investigators are probing an $14 million church financing plan which is near collapse in Oregon. UPI has learned the threatening of mortgages of 300 churches around the nation.

Also threatened are the investments of about 7,000 church members, according to court documents.

The Oregon Corporation Commission, which regulates securities sales in the state, has filed suit in Marion County Circuit Court in Salem against the operators of the program, headed by a Salem minister.

Two other civil lawsuits also have been filed naming the Rev. Atwood Foster, president and chief operating officer of Church Service Programs, a nonprofit Oregon corporation, and Continental Securities Corp.

The Marion County Court Monday issued an injunction prohibiting the corporations from further investments.

Foster's suit alleged some of the money was used to "invest in speculative loans and investments unrelated to church financing or any religious purpose."

The other two suits were filed in the Multnomah County, Ore., court and in Oregon's federal district court by a group of chiropractors who sought financing for a school of chiropractic through Foster's corporations.

Those suits alleged that Foster diverted corporate funds for other investments.

Foster and his wife were reported to be vacationing in Arizona, and could not be reached for comment.

Church Service Programs and Continental Securities were founded by Foster about 10 years ago for nationwide church financing purposes.

The two firms are now in a combination of receiverships and trusteeships. The Multnomah County Court has also enjoined Foster from disposing of any property.

Kennedy leads poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — A Louis Harris poll shows Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., leading all other candidates for president in 1976, including President Ford.

Kennedy beat Ford by 7 per cent margin, the only one of six Democratic candidates to beat the President in the poll.

Kennedy led Ford in the poll by 50 to 43 per cent, the most of his support came from voters under 30. Among those, he led Ford 64 to 32 per cent and lost to Ford, 47 to 45 per cent among voters over 30.

Kennedy lost the white vote by 48 to 45 per cent, but won overwhelmingly among blacks — 89 to 10 per cent.

Sens. Edmund Muskie of Maine and Henry Jackson of Washington tied Ford, and Sen. Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota trailed him 47 to 40 per cent.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas ran behind Ford 47 to 38 per cent, and Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona lost 50 to 33 per cent.

Ulster security kept tight

BELFAST (UPI) — Security forces mounted special patrols today to keep Northern Ireland's worst violence in a year from disrupting elections leading to local government rule in the troubled province.

A bootlegger bomb killed a pregnant 21-year-old Roman Catholic woman and her two brothers Monday, raising to 20 the number killed in the last three weeks.

On May 12 voters in Northern Ireland will elect delegates to a constitutional convention.

The convention will try and formulate a government rule based on power-sharing between the Protestant majority and Catholic minority in the province.

Security forces have conducted special patrols to keep political gatherings from erupting into violent attacks in the remaining days before the election.

Eresno newsmen sentenced

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI) — Three Fresno Bee newsmen were sentenced to indefinite jail terms Monday for refusing to identify the source who provided them with grand jury testimony.

Superior Court Judge Denver Peckinpaugh imposed the sentence on Managing Editor George Gruener and reporters William Patterson and Joe Rosato, who had been found in contempt 42 times during previous hearings.

Peckinpaugh stayed their sentence until May 24, when they are expected to appeal on the grounds that they are protected from being forced to reveal their sources by California's Shield Law.

Proceedings against the Bee began following the publication of three articles in January, including testimony from the grand jury transcript, which had been ordered sealed pending completion of bribery-conspiracy cases against a city councilman and two others.

During a hearing to find the Bee's source for the transcript material, it was discovered that Patterson had a key to the courthouse. But Patterson said he got the key for easy access to the county clerk's office for many of his stories.

Patterson has since surrendered the key to Peckinpaugh.

President eyes US troop aid for Viets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford says a large force of American troops may have to return to Vietnam for the short-term, limited purpose of helping evacuate Americans and the South Vietnamese who once fought with them.

Ford said he was trying to arrange a cease-fire and to reopen peace negotiations now that President Nguyen Van Thieu has resigned; but he held out little hope.

An evacuation from combat condition, he said, would mean many American troops would be needed to take out the few thousand Americans, the Vietnamese and their families who sided with the United States for 15 years and more. The estimates run up to 200,000.

U.S. Marines, said Ford, have left Hawaii as part of a "movement to strengthen" — get up to strength — Marine detachments in that area of the Pacific. The Pentagon said Sunday the nine carriers and amphibious vessels of the 7th Fleet were in the South China Sea off Vietnam.

He talked of Vietnam in the past tense, as if efforts to save the government were already too late. His careful choice of words indicated that some U.S. officials had influenced Thieu's decision to quit. Army Chief of Staff Frederick C. Weyand told Congress Monday the situation in Saigon was "virtually hopeless."

Ford blames Congress.

The failure of Congress to appropriate the military aid requested — the previous administration asked for $1.4 billion — Congress provided $1 billion. Congress appropriated $700 million — and the failure to make the commitment for this fiscal year of something close to what was asked for, certainly raised doubts in the mind of President Thieu — that we would be supplying sufficient military hardware for them to adequately defend their various positions."

For an hour Monday, the President was interviewed by CBS News in the Blue Room of the White House. Unlike his three interviewers, Ford declined to wear television makeup.

Ford said he could understand the feelings of Thieu, who blamed the United States as he resigned — He added — that he had read the correspondence of 1972 and 1973 and had talked with Richard Nixon about them — and the private assurances were the ones made in public.

"I think the president of South Vietnam could have come to the conclusion, as he did, that the United States government would do two things: one, replace military hardware on a 1-for-1 basis, keep his military strength sufficiently high so that he could meet any of the challenges of the North, and in addition there was a commitment that we, as a nation, would try to enforce the agreements that were signed in January of 1973."

He said the War Powers Act prevented military help and "unfortunately, the replacement of military hardware was not lived up to."

"It is a question of how you phrase it," Ford said when asked if he had pressured Thieu to quit. "We never asked anybody to ask him to step down. There were discussions as to whether or not he shouldn't, but there was no direct request from me to relinquish his role as head of state."

Ford said, "There may have been some on the scene in Saigon who may have talked to President Thieu, but there was no pressure from here."

The single medical use found so far is the treatment of loss of fatty tissue in the face. Less than 2,000 cases of this loss have been reported worldwide.

Vinik says there is no way to police its use once FDA gives approval.

Ban urged on silicone injections

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles A. Vinik, a Las Vegas plastic surgeon, says the use of silicone injections as beauty treatments "for faces and women's breasts is dangerous."

"It doesn't deserve to be let loose on the American public," Vinik testified at a meeting of the House investigations subcommittee Monday.

He asked the Food and Drug Administration to withhold marketing approval of silicone injections used to increase breast size, remove facial wrinkles and build up sagging areas.

Vinik said he has seen several hundred cases of women with disfigurement and rotting skin from silicone injections. Also he added, a few men have had penis injections with "disfiguring results."

He showed slides of women he said were treated 10 or more years ago with silicone. Some had faces with rotting skin, others with red, bumpy breasts described as rock hard from silicone.

As of March 14, it was illegal in Nevada to inject liquid silicone substances into the human body. The felony is punishable by up to six years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

In a paper, Vinik will present next month at a scientific meeting in Vancouver, he says: "Most problems have been described in the breast; however, complications of facial injections now appear to be becoming widespread."

Before briefing the subcommittee, Vinik appeared before an FDA panel to urge for further research on silicone injections before giving them drug status which, Vinik said, would "have the same effect as putting it on the market."

The drug has been tested under controlled conditions approved by FDA for 10 years. At FDA authorized research centers, silicone has been injected facially.

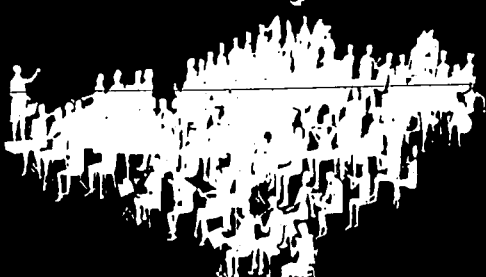

The single medical use found so far is the treatment of loss of fatty tissue in the face. Less than 2,000 cases of this loss have been reported worldwide.

Vinik says there is no way to police its use once FDA gives approval.

Latins miffed again?

CHICAGO Daily News
WASHINGTON — U.S. foreign policy leaders were hoping today that normally extra-sensitive Latin-American officials, "understand" the postponement of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's visit south of the border.

The announcement Kissinger would delay his five-day trip to Argentina, Brazil and Venezuela — scheduled to start Wednesday — comes on top of a previous cutback in announced plans for him to visit Chile and Peru as well. That was to have been almost a "grand tour" of the South American continent, that would have taken nine days. Some State Department observers believed Kissinger had not been overly enthusiastic about the trip anyway, while some Latin-American press comment — after the cutback — the originally planned schedule — hinted his sojourn appeared to be a routine diplomatic requirement.

Thus the two views reinforced each other.

Latin American experts are constantly aware of a common complaint by South American countries — that "Washington talks us for granted." Such developments as postponing the latest meeting, which Kissinger had arranged in line with his announced belief in the importance of building Latin-American "dialog" — tends "to reinforce these feelings.

Therefore, it was noted, the statement on the postponement was drafted so as to impart the greatest sense of urgency for the delay.

"Events in Indochina are unfolding with such unexpected speed that the President has asked me to stay in Washington in the days just ahead," Kissinger said.

"It is with great reluctance and even greater personal regret..."

Kissinger said he had informed the foreign ministers of the three countries of his "determination" to visit them "at a later date."

But it appeared it would not be before May 8, when the general assembly of the Organization of American States (OAS) is scheduled to meet in Washington for a conference expected to run 10 days, possibly longer.

Soviets pressing new talks

N. Y. Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union is proposing an abbreviated, preliminary session of the Geneva conference on the Middle East in late May or early June, according to official Arab and Soviet sources. Soviet plans for a resumption of the conference, the sources said, are being explained to ranking Arab officials meeting here and through high-level diplomatic channels. The United States and Israel were also being kept abreast of the Soviet moves.

Details of the Kremlin's tentative plans to return to Geneva were disclosed amid a flurry of meetings here among representatives and few details of the talks have been announced, but it seemed clear that the Kremlin was accelerating its efforts to reopen the Geneva conference.

The conference which opened after the 1967 war, achieved little and has not been reconvened since its initial session. The Soviet move toward Geneva began in earnest several weeks ago when, the termination of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to arrange a partial settlement between Israel and Egypt.

The current Soviet plans, sources report, is to convene a short — possibly one-day or two-day — session of the Geneva conference before the summer. The Soviet leaders were said to have illusions about the possibility of achieving substantive progress at such a brief session.

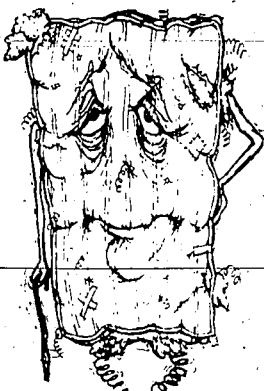

However, the holding of such a session, the sources said, would presumably provide a psychological gain, and show that it was possible to seek nonmilitary solutions through the medium of the Geneva conference. At the preliminary session, the sources said, a fuller meeting could be scheduled for the autumn.

Delayed reaction to Hansen puzzling

BOISE (UPI) — There is a curious aspect about the George Hansen campaign practice case that everyone except Idaho Attorney General Wayne L. Kidwell seems to have overlooked.

Idaho's second district congressman admitted some two months ago that he violated two misdemeanor sections of the federal Campaign Practices Act. Yet, it was not until he was sentenced to prison last week that his misdeeds brought a strong reaction from public and politicians alike.

Kidwell first raised the question on a television interview program — KTVB's "Viewpoint" Sunday. Why, he asked, in so many words, if what Hansen did was so bad, was there not a hue and cry for his resignation at the time he pleaded guilty two months ago? Why the delayed reaction until his sentencing?

Some suggest the very shock of a prison term triggered the reaction — prison indicating the charges against Hansen were more serious than they appeared at his arraignment.

Kidwell spoke to that point in an interview when he asked, "I wonder, if they would be clamoring for his resignation if he had received a $100 fine?"

"He could have, you know," he said, adding the charges remained the same whatever the punishment imposed by the court.

Still another view surfaced when some of Hansen's constituents complained they will be deprived of their representation in Congress during the period of his incarceration when he enters the Allendale, Pa., correctional institution next month.

When Hansen appeared in U. S. District Court in Washington, D. C. last Friday a normally lenient federal judge gave him a 12-month prison sentence — with all but two months suspended — and one year on probation.

Hansen and his family showed obvious shock. Most observers felt Hansen would be let off with a fine.

The judge, in handing down the sentence, said he was imposing prison time because Hansen had served in the Congress prior to his last campaign. He said he should have been knowledgeable about the laws.

He asked how the private citizen can understand and abide by the laws if those who write the laws cannot resignation. Although much of the reaction to Hansen's sentencing took on a partisan tinge it still seems strange that some waited until the judge put the stripes on him, so to speak, before calling for his

As Kidwell pointed out in the televised interview — if what Hansen did was "bad" at the time of his sentencing it was "bad" when he pleaded guilty. It's an interesting point.

Food stamp changes posted

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced three amendments to the Food Stamp Program.

They will: 1) restrict business from both issuing and redeeming food stamps; 2) change the design of the authorization-to-purchase (ATP) card; and 3) hold states liable for some cases of adverse court decisions.

The first of these amendments formalizes a long-standing USDA policy precluding state agencies from designating as issuing agents any business authorized to accept and redeem food coupons from recipients.

USDA's Food and Nutrition Service says that such a dual designation would give a firm an unfair competitive advantage.

USDA received 12 comments on this amendment, which was published in the Federal Register on Dec. 19, 1974, for public comment — six in favor, six against.

The second amendment requires by July 1, 1975, that the design of the authorization-to-purchase (ATP) card include a signature line for each variable purchase option.

This option allows food stamp participants to purchase all three quarters, one-half or one-quarter of their monthly coupon allotment. The new cards will provide a space for the participant's signature next to the purchase option to make it more difficult for an unauthorized person to purchase the remaining portion of the allotment.

USDA received 16 comments after the proposed amendment was published in the Federal Register of Sept. 30, 1974. Nine of the comments were favorable and seven were unfavorable. Most of those commenting unfavorably agreed with the value of the amendment in curtailing variable purchase manipulation, but felt they needed more time to reprogram their computers to accept the redesigned cards.

Therefore, the implementation date has been extended from March 1 to July 1.

The third amendment makes the administering state agencies liable for the value of bonus coupons issued pursuant to an adverse court decision if the agencies fail to notify USDA of lawsuits or if the agencies do not, upon request, join USDA as parties in the suit. The intent is that FNS be afforded the opportunity to defend its regulations coming under court action.

Ten comments were received on this proposal after its publication in the Federal Register of Sept. 30, 1974. One comment agreed with the proposal and another objected to it in its entirety. The remaining comments agreed and disagreed in part with the new provision.

The final regulations were published in the Federal Register of April 11, and became effective immediately upon publication.

Vegetable grower costs pass break-even

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Vegetable growers are in the same boat as other American farmers with input costs rising rapidly and the break-even point higher than ever, a farm management economist says.

Marvin Sartin, area specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, said costs of growing vegetables in a field or in a garden have risen dramatically over the past two years.

"For growers to remain in business, average prices must be higher now than ever before," he said. "The Texas high plains vegetable industry is rather small compared to traditional crops like cotton and grain sorghum."

"On the other hand, a number of farmers growing cotton and grain sorghum also are producing vegetable crops. Only a relatively few farmers have vegetables as their primary endeavor."

On the Texas high plains, vegetables are produced both for processing and fresh markets. Processing vegetables usually are grown under contract with the processor and the price structure is locked in.

"A guaranteed price removes the most variable factor in vegetable production and significantly reduces the financial risk," he said. "At the same time this limits profit potentials and places these vegetables in an alternate crop classification."

"Fresh market vegetable production has long been conducted under free market conditions.

with wide price variations. Relatively short supplies of particular vegetables command astronomical prices, while high prices for a particular vegetable almost guarantee overproduction and low prices the next season."

"All growers, be they large croppers or just the backyard type, must be aware of the increased costs for producing vegetables," he said.

West Texas farmer Dean Nichols, who has a small Lubbock garden, put it this way:

"We're really in a bind. I try to make a living growing and producing cotton and grain, while my wife tries to put food on the table by growing a small garden. But with prices climbing, we just can't seem to get ahead."

farm Spring brings out clover mite swarm

RENO — It suddenly your house is invaded by an army of small dark bugs; it could be clover mites on the move.

An entomologist at the College of Agriculture, University of Nevada, says that with warmer days there have been reports of overwintering bugs such as the ryegrass, and box elder bugs causing problems.

Robert W. Lauderdale, extension entomologist, said most reports have concerned clover mites. He said that they can occur in great numbers on the youth and western exposures around homes. And, they can enter the homes particularly if grass grows right up to the dwelling.

Lauderdale said the mites feed on grass and clover but in crawling around frequently enter homes inside a house they can be sucked up with a vacuum cleaner or controlled with a household aerosol bomb.

Outside, Lauderdale recommends spraying with Chlorobenzilate, Tedion, or Diazinon. Treatment should be applied mid-day when the temperatures are 55 degrees or above. Spray around the home from the height of the windows down the wall and out about 15 feet. Apply spray until it begins to run off, Lauderdale said.

He said clover mites are hard to control and that it is a good idea to apply a second spray an hour or two after the first application.

Cassia crop tops

BOISE — Last year's wheat crop in the Magic Valley area amounted to 11.14 million bushels.

The major wheat producing county was Cassia with 3.03 million bushels and a yield of 39.3 per acre on 76,000 acres. Highest yield was Jerome County with 74 bushels per acre on 24,100 acres and a total production of 1.78 million bushels.

Other counties included Blaine, 5,700 acres, 44.8 bushels per acre yield and 255,200 bushels total production; Camas, 9,700 acres, 15.1 bushels per acre and 146,500 bushels total production; Gooding, 7,800 acres, 71 bushels per acre, 553,800 bushels produced; Lincoln, 10,400 acres, 62.3 bushels per acre, 647,400 production; Minidoka, 32,300, 68.2 bushels per acre and 2.2 million bushels produced, and Twin Falls, 34,900 acres, 72.2 bushels per acre and 2.51 million bushels.

Coyotes set pace

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — A New Mexico State University study of sheep deaths showed that predators, mostly coyotes, killed 15.6 percent of the lambs in a test herd.

James M. Sachse, extension sheep specialist at NMU, said the study was undertaken at a Lincoln County ranch last year to help provide information about the damage done to livestock by predators.

"Because of the conflicting viewpoints it is evident that a full understanding of the predator-prey relationship as it pertains to domestic livestock is lacking," Sachse said.

There were 319 lambs and 633 adult sheep used in the study and 144 of them died during the test period from March 31 to Oct. 19, 1974.

None of the 28 adult sheep deaths was attributed to predators, officials said but 31 of the 116 lamb deaths were caused by predators. Forty-four of the lambs were killed for other reasons and 19 of them died from unknown reasons.

Seedlings buried in snow banks

McALL, Idaho (UPI) — Nearly two million tree seedlings from nurseries at Boise and Coeur d'Alene are being buried in snow banks to boost survival rates in a national forest reforestation program.

Transported during the past week, they will be kept in the snow for up to three months until they can be planted later in the season on the Payette National Forest.

Jack Billis, McCall, an official in the forest's timber management branch, said the seedlings must be put into cold storage before they start growing in the spring.

"The minute they start to grow, they're using up the reserve food in their root systems," Billis said. "The more stored food you have the better chance you have for survival."

He said that by keeping the seedlings dormant in snow banks until they can be planted,

Respected teacher takes Saigon reins

Tuesday, April 22, 1975 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 11

ON Y. Times Service
SAIGON — Many years ago, in the prosperous Mekong Delta town of Mytho, a popular, respected teacher presided over the local school.

The son of a poor farmer, the teacher lived simply and tried to instill in his students a rigorous belief in the Confucian principles of righteousness and integrity.

He apparently succeeded, at least to the extent of producing highly-motivated and disciplined pupils. One of them, Huynh-Tan-Phat, went on to become chairman of the Vietnamese Provisional Revolutionary Government.

And now, with the resignation of President Nguyen Van Thieu, the old teacher, Tran Van Huong, becomes the new president of South Vietnam.

His task is shared with the task of negotiating an end of the war with his former student.

TRAN VAN HUONG
... formidable job

It is a formidable job for any man.

A stocky man who has been afflicted for years with rheumatism, Huong last year suffered a near-fatal bout of kidney trouble. He had to go to Walter Reed Hospital in Washington for treatment, and now walks unsteadily with the aid of a cane. When he makes one of his rare appearances in public, as he did Monday evening in taking the oath of office, his voice wavers.

Few Vietnamese think of him as more than a figurehead, and few feel he will be able to last more than a short time in his new post.

Huong was picked by Thieu as his vice presidential running mate in 1971 partly because the president felt Huong would not try to exert power or challenge his rule in that respect. Thieu was not wrong.

Since taking the job, Huong lived quietly in the vice president's carefully guarded white villa, emerging only rarely for a ceremonial appearance at President Thieu's side. Few people noticed him, and few ever thought it likely he would succeed Thieu in a "constitutional" change of government.

But Huong was one of the most respected political figures in South Vietnam, a leading intellectual, an idealist, a solid member of the opposition to autocracy and corruption in office.

Thieu built up his reputation during his long years as a teacher. But he gained wide popularity during a brief term as mayor of Saigon in 1961 when he rode to work on a bicycle and moved vigorously to root out corruption in the city government, something no one else before or after him ever did.

Called "uncle" by his fellow Vietnamese, a term of respect, Huong reached the height of his popularity when he was named premier by then President Nguyen Khanh on Nov. 4, 1964, the same day Lyndon B. Johnson was elected president of the United States.

There was hope among many in Saigon that Huong would move effectively to reestablish a standard of civic morality, as he had earlier done as mayor. He was also well received because he was a native Southerner — born in the Mekong Delta's Vinh Long Province — and a Confucian.

President Ngo Dinh Diem, who had been ousted only a year before, was a native of central Vietnam, and an ardent Catholic. The split between Southerners, who are largely Buddhist or Confucian, and North and Central Vietnamese, many of whom are Catholics, has always been a bitter one in Saigon politics. Thieu is from Central Vietnam and is a Catholic.

But Huong lasted less than three months as premier and proved both a weak administrator and an unsuccessful mediator in the conflict between Buddhists and Catholics.

In 1967 he ran against Thieu in the latter's first campaign for president, coming in fourth on a ticket pledged to seek a negotiated settlement to the war rather than more fighting.

Despite his public career, Huong himself, according to associates, has always been something of a loner. He has been separated from his wife, Lau Thi Thieu, the daughter of a poor peasant, since about 1960.

Sometimes he has lived by himself, sometimes with relatives, and occasionally with former students, whom he is said to regard more as disciples in the old Chinese sense. He had two sons. One joined the Vietnam insurgency against the French in 1946 and is now missing. The other has worked here for the United States government and for Esso.

The new president of Vietnam was born on Dec. 1, 1903. His father was a poor farmer; his mother sold soup in the market.

As a young man he attended

French schools on scholarship, graduating from Hanoi's School of Pedagogy in 1926.

After almost three decades as a teacher, he entered the political world when he was appointed mayor of Saigon by President Diem in 1954. He lasted only six months, however, and later was jailed briefly by Diem for protesting the president's autocratic rule.

After Diem's overthrow, Huong was made mayor again in 1961, served as premier twice: from November, 1964, to January, 1965, and again from May, 1968, to September, 1969.

Given his earlier reputation for integrity and opposition to the war, it was a major surprise when he agreed to run as vice president with Thieu in 1971. Explaining this at the time he said he had accepted Thieu's request because "I can not relax while the country is in danger."

He acknowledged, however, that he was now a politician with "little vigor." What he would rather do, he said, was stay at home in his villa. "At my age, I enjoy my books, my birds and my plants."

'76 Brigade set to go

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Some veterans of Vietnam, Korea and World War II, calling themselves the '76 Brigade, want to fly to Vietnam to "fight for freedom and justice."

Joe Belisario, who served in Vietnam for two years, said the brigade has already enlisted close to 95 veterans "dedicated to upholding the American commitment to the South Vietnamese people."

"Our members wish to exercise their right of dissent and their rights as Americans to resist the spread of communism anywhere," he said.

The brigade is being recruited by a group called the Veterans and Volunteers for Vietnam, which said it is enlisting soldiers, doctors and mechanics at a rate of about 10 a day from a headquarters in a small house in southeast Washington. It says volunteers have come from 22 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Belisario said money for the brigade comes "out of our back pocket." Where will the group get its weapons? "I cannot release that information at this time," he said.

How will they get to South Vietnam? "We have air transportation."

Belisario said the brigade accepts any volunteers from "free nations if they can pass intensive screening."

The group does not have a general yet, but its executive director, Bart S. Bonner, founder of the VVV, is the commanding officer.

Italian strike turns rough

ROME (UPI) — Italian workers staged a nationwide strike today to "say no to fascism." New violence began even before workers walked off the job.

The strike, originally called to back demands for social reform and full employment, turned into an antifascist protest after the deaths of three young leftists last week in nationwide political violence blamed on right-wing fascists.

The strikes ranged from a half hour for railroad and plane crews to up to eight hours for factory and office workers in Milan.

"General strike to say no to fascism," two Rome newspapers said in almost identical headlines today.

A firebomb damaged a branch office of the Christian Democratic party in Rome during the night, and a gunman fired from a moving car at Christian Democratic politicians driving out of the city.

Three shots shattered the front and back windows of the car driven by Filippo De Jorio, a deputy for the Lazio region, but he was not injured.

The violence came less than two months before nationwide regional elections June 15 in which pollsters say the west's largest Communist party stands a chance of outpuling the ruling Christian Democrats.

The Christian Democrats, who have dominated every Italian government since World War II, want to make a strong showing even though no parliament seats are at stake to counter bids by the Communists for "historic compromise" in which they would share decision making power.

The violence began in Milan last Wednesday, turning the northern industrial city's center into a battlefield after rightwingers shot and killed a young leftist.

Another leftist was crushed to death by a tank in Milan before the rioting spread to at least a dozen other cities.

Paris asks for talks

ON N.Y. Times Service
PARIS — The French government appealed Monday for a quick resumption of negotiations to implement the 1973 Paris agreements on Vietnam, accompanied by a cease-fire covering all South Vietnam.

The statement, issued by the spokesman for President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing, said France was "naturally ready to do all in its power to favor the application of the Paris agreements."

Nguyen Kuan Phong, who heads Saigon's embassy here, was asked whether any contacts had yet been made with the Communist side and answered, "Not yet, the important word is yet."

Pro football talks resume

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spokesmen for the pro football players and the owners resumed formal bargaining today for the first time since last August when a costly strike ended without a contract between the two sides.

Subcommittees from the NFL Players Association and the NFL Management Council convened under auspices of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service in the effort to work out a settlement in the coming weeks. The attitude of the union and owner representatives was slightly more conciliatory than it was when negotiations broke down, and the players reported to training camps but there was no firm assurance that peace in the pro football world was imminent.

However, James Secaree, deputy director of the mediation service, commented: "Certainly I'm encouraged. I think we're headed in the right direction for an agreement."

Controversy over the so-called Rozelle rule on compensating a team which obtains a player who has played out his option remains a major stumbling block. Under the present system, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle is empowered to arbitrarily set the compensation usually in players or draft choices.

The union contends that as an employee of the owners, Rozelle sets the compensation so high that few teams will consider hiring a player who has played out his one year option and become a free agent. The association has proposed that, because of interdependency of the various rules bearing on player retention and movement, draft, option clause, option compensation waivers and trades.

The management council's response to the players' last Thursday, however, suggested a different approach to the Rozelle rule. In the case of a

Unlucky cat

IDAHO Fish and Game conservationist Lon Teeler displays female cougar shot by Steve Harp outside his farm house south of Buhl Monday morning. Harp told officers the cat had tried to scratch its way through the farm house door and was shot while hiding in bushes near the house. Teeler said the young cougar was "very thin" but could give no explanation for its behavior. The animal carcass will be frozen and shipped to Boise for dissection.

King chastised

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Billie Jean King has no grounds to criticize a linesman's call she says robbed her of the $50,000 first prize in the L'Espresso World Series of Tennis last weekend, tournament umpire Jason Morton said Monday.

"Billie Jean King was not cheated out of the match, she was beaten," Morton said in a statement released by the Lakeway World of Tennis where Chris Evert defeated Ms. King 4-6, 6-3, 7-6.

Ms. King was steaming after the match Sunday. She said the call, by young linesman Larry Eichenbaum of Austin, cost her the title and tournament winnings.

"This is the angriest I have ever been in my life over a tennis match," she said. "As far as I'm concerned, I got screwed out of the match."

Ms. King was leading 6-5 in the third and final set and seemingly had her game in control when, thinking the linesman had called a shot from Miss Evert "out," returned the shot with a casual lob that went far out of bounds. Morton awarded the point to Miss Evert.

"Anyone who has played tennis for just a couple of years knows that a ball is still in play unless an official calls it out," Morton said. "The linespeople, men and women, were operating under instructions not just to call a ball out, but yell it out."

Yankees bomb Sox

BOSTON (UPI) — The New York Yankees blasted Bill Lee and Dick Drago for 10 runs in the first four innings Monday and coasted behind the six-hit pitching of Pat Dobson to a 12-1 victory over the Boston Red Sox in a Patriots Day morning game.

Dobson, winning for the first time in three decisions, held the Red Sox to an infield single by Dwight Evans through the first seven innings. They finally reached him for a run in the ninth on three hits with Bob Heise's delivering the run.

Dodgers edge Atlanta

ATLANTA (UPI) — Hookie Henry Cruz bounced a double down the rightfield line to score Lee Lacy with two out in the top of the ninth Monday night and give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 2-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Dodgers had jumped in front in the second inning on a leadoff homer by Ron Cey, his fourth of the year, and the Braves had tied it in the bottom of the seventh on a leadoff home run by Vic Correll, his second.

Probe panel picked

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Michigan State University President Clifton R. Wharton Jr. appointed a special committee Monday to investigate charges regarding the university's football program that is already being probed by the NCAA.

Wharton also called for an end to speculation over the nature of the NCAA probe. It has been rumored for the past year that MSU's football recruitment practices were being scrutinized.

Clemente 'city' backed

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI) — Donations to build the Roberto Clemente Sports City for Puerto Rican youth have passed the $700,000 mark, with work on the project expected to begin next month, the executive director of the project, Jose Seda, said Monday.

Seda made the announcement during a ceremony in which $87,395 collected in two exhibition games played here last month by the Pirates and the Yankees was turned over to the Roberto Clemente Sports City Inc.

Swede takes opener

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — A devastating serve and a brilliant backhand stroke carried Swedish champion Tommy Svensson to his finest win to date when he defeated second seeded fellow countryman Bjorn Borg Monday night in the opening round of the $50,000 World Championship of Tennis Green Group tournament.

Svensson, 23, who won the Swedish title in the absence of Borg, beat his famous opponent in straight sets 6-4, 6-4.

Attendance climbs

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — After the first two weeks of the 1975 season, attendance in the National League is up by 71,123 over the same period last year, the league office announced Monday.

The total for the first two weeks of the season reached 1,162,456, compared to 791,331 last year.

Foreman set for slugfest

TORONTO (UPI) — Former world heavyweight boxing champion George Foreman arrived in Toronto Monday for a "Foreman vs. Frazier" slugfest Saturday and immediately announced hopes for a "Foreman vs. Three" spectacular — against Muhammad Ali, Joe Frazier and Ken Norton.

On Saturday — in his first ring outing since his defeat — he will fight five "journeyman boxers" in succession at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens.

Davis to attend meet

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State University President Dr. William E. Davis will attend the National Collegiate Athletic Association meeting on economy in intercollegiate athletics this week in Kansas City, Mo.

Davis, an at-large delegate, is one of 12 college and university presidents that will take part in the meeting. The conference will explore ways of curtailing the operating costs of intercollegiate athletics and of generating additional revenues.

Notus coach named

NOTUS, Idaho (UPI) — Jay Danzell, former Homedale High School baseball coach, today was named baseball-baseball mentor at Notus High for the 1975-76 season.

Danzell, 37, replaces Bob Hull, who resigned last week to return to farming.

Wildlife, humans clash in Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho winters have been more severe than the one just ending but as this one grinds to a finish, State Fish and Game officials pointed out how people compounded the agony for wildlife.

There were spots in the state where late snows created some problems for big game but the animals went into the critical time of year in good condition.

This helped when the late, heavy snows arrived but stored energy was quickly used up as the weather drove animals near human settlements in the valleys, putting animals and man in conflict.

One of the worst examples was the northern Idaho whitetailed deer. Region One biologists described what happened as the "worst losses since the severe winter of 1968-69."

Ray Rogers, Region One game manager, said the development in the area over the past several years is slowly catching up with the whitetail, and this winter the weather added the last straw.

"Through December, the whitetail were in good shape, then, starting about the middle of January, there were two months of heavy snow and extended cold temperatures," Rogers said.

Snow lay deep in the lowlands, the whitetail's usual wintering area, and heightened the conflict that has been building between the whitetail's needs and the desires of man to build homes farther and farther up the valleys, bringing with him vehicles, noise and dogs.

"The dogs took a heavy toll of whitetail this year," Rogers said. The same heavy snow that drove the deer near the valley homes also kept them from escaping the healthy dogs.

The result was what one biologist called "a terrible waste of wildlife." Many of the deer not killed outright by the dogs have been weakened by harassment to the point they are susceptible to disease.

Jack Mc Neel, Region One staff conservationist, in describing the situation wrote: "I've had to chase dogs off deer a time or two. When you've seen a deer that's been badly chewed around the hind legs with large chunks of meat gone, bleeding heavily and crying like a baby..."

Northern Idaho elk fared better and biologists report the elk are coming through the winter in fairly good shape.

Farther south, emergency winter feeding was still going on into the third week of April on Warm Springs Creek near Ketchum. In that area again, housing developments by people wanting to see elk from their windows are destroying what the people moved there to find.

Winter range along the Big Wood River is rapidly disappearing under housing developments and swelling winter sports activity.

About 40 head of elk are being kept alive with the emergency feeding, but game managers are taking a hard look at the future of this herd, questioning whether they should continue the expensive winter feeding program in light of the booming development in the area.

Elk, trying to survive the winters in the disappearing willow bottoms, are suffering

Project runs on 'faith'

AURORA, Ill. (UPI) — The Rev. Robert Wesly has no reason to think it won't work, even though he plans to run his "food bank" on faith.

Starting Monday, a former travel agency office in this Chicago suburb will be doing out food to anyone who needs it, in any amount they want and without "questions asked."

"To have to fill out all those forms and files is so humiliating, and dehumanizing," Wesly, director of Aurora Operation PUSH, said. "I went with a couple of people to these offices and after that visit, I tell you, I wished I had the money to give them myself."

Wesly said when people run out of food stamps or short of money, they come to the "food bank" and get all the cereal, canned vegetables and other nonperishable staples they need.

"It's faith work. And I have confidence that it will work," Wesly said. "When there's no food, people will come here to get food. Then, when they run into trouble again—and they haven't helped us out in the meantime, there wouldn't be any food here either."

"When you're hungry and you come here out of despair, you'll remember where you got food when you come on better circumstances," he said.

Already, he said, the project has gained support from many of the areas churches, the local American Legion post and the employees union at a local manufacturing plant. All have promised to stock the bank for its opening.

"It's going to work just like a blood bank without the forms and files," Wesly said.

Jerome man hospitalized

JEROME — Louis Eugene "Gene" Dilka, 36, Jerome, is in critical condition in an Alberta, Canada, hospital, following an automobile accident Thursday near Edmonton. Dilka's brother, Orvis "Sonny" LeRoy Dilka, 37, formerly of Jerome, was killed in the same two-car accident. Two other persons also died as a result of the accident.

The men are the sons of Louis Dilka, Jerome.

Burley police probe rape

BURLEY — Burley police said that a Burley woman in her 20s was raped Saturday night. The woman reported the incident at 11:30 p.m. Saturday. She said a single assailant attacked her.

Police declined to release any further information Monday morning.

Surgical Instruments stolen

TWIN FALLS — Dr. H. Thad Scholes, Twin Falls, told city police Monday someone entered his office at 284 Martin St. and took a number of surgical instruments.

He said the items were missing from an examining room Monday but he did not know the exact time they disappeared. Loss was estimated at $120.

TF man injured

TWIN FALLS — Julian Hernandez, 57, Twin Falls, suffered lacerations and other minor injuries when the vehicle he was driving collided with three parked vehicles late Monday.

The accident occurred about 9 p.m. in the 100 block of Adams Street.

City police said the Hernandez vehicle struck a parked auto owned by Larry Jennings, 173 Adams, forcing the Jennings vehicle into two other parked vehicles. City police cited Hernandez for driving left of the center line and for driving without a driver's license.

Damage was listed at $2,000 to the Hernandez sedan, $500 to the Jennings vehicle and $175 and $400 to the two other vehicles.

Welfare error rate eyed

BOISE (UPI) — Reducing Idaho's welfare error rate to zero may cost more than what it saves, according to an official of the State Department of Health and Welfare.

Jerry Quick, head of financial and medical assistance programs for the department, said the agency could spend a ton of money to revamp the entire organization in a possibly futile effort to reduce errors.

Overpayments to eligible families increased during the last half of 1974, he said, because of a huge increase in the food stamp program.

Plane crash probed

BOISE (UPI) — Investigators are conducting an on-site inspection of the wreckage to determine why a light plane crashed into a remote mountain on the Idaho-Nevada border, killing both occupants.

"At the same time an autopsy has been ordered to determine the exact cause of death of Charles and Marlene Cloud, Anchorage, Alaska. They died last Thursday night in the crash of their plane in the top of 7,000-foot Mountain View Ridge six miles southeast of Riddle, Idaho.

Officials of the Federal Aviation Administration said both the on-site inspection and the autopsy were routine procedures in fatal air crashes.

Cause of death still not known

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Canyon County authorities still are trying to find out what caused the death of a Caldwell teenager at the home of friends early Sunday.

Coroner Thomas M. Donnellinger said Bradley David Wamsley Harris, 16, had been visiting the children of Mrs. Helen Sleeper Saturday night. The young people said he complained of being sick at his stomach.

He was found dead early Sunday in the bathroom, his head resting on a pile of laundry and a blanket covering him.

An autopsy was performed Sunday and results were sent to the state laboratory at Boise for toxicology tests.

Education meet set May 1-2

BOISE (UPI) — Adoption of education guidelines for the gifted and talented and a state plan for deaf-blind children will be considered by the Idaho Board of Education at its May 1-2 meeting in southeastern Idaho.

State Public Instruction Sup. Roy Truby said Monday the board will discuss reports covering performance based graduation, update of the Idaho history project, school district participation in kindergarten and environmental education.

Janel Hay of Nampa, state board president, said the first day's meeting will be held at Marsh Valley High School in Arimo and the second day at Lava Hot Springs.

Mrs. Hay said business of the state vocational education and vocational rehabilitation agencies would be discussed in addition to a joint session of board members with the administrative staffs of the institutions of higher learning.

Decision due at Gooding

GOODING — Gooding Mayor Leo Rice has one more day to decide whether he will face a recall election or resign his post.

City clerk George Silva said he had notified Rice Friday that petitions requesting a recall were in order.

Rice has five days after notification to decide to resign or face a recall election.

If the mayor decides not to resign, Silva said his legal duty is to call a recall vote, setting the date within 30 days.

Mayor Rice said today he had not made a decision on whether to resign or not.

CSI forms agency to boost museum

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho trustees voted Monday night to support the formation of a private, non-profit corporation to raise funds for a campus cultural museum.

The board's vote of support came in response to a suggestion by CSI President James L. Taylor that such a corporation be formed to raise funds for a structure to house the Norman Herrett collection of artifacts and educational displays.

Herrett, a Twin Falls jeweler, has for several years operated an educational museum and planetarium as a public service for school children. Herrett has also traveled extensively amassing a collection of North and South American Indian artifacts, many of which have been incorporated into his educational displays on the societies and cultures of historical peoples.

In the late 1960s Herrett made provisions to donate his entire collection to CSI.

The non-profit corporation as proposed by Taylor, would be organized to raise funds for a historical museum to house the Herrett collection on campus.

Taylor told the board that the corporation would have no legal tie with the college but would be free to raise funds for a museum, which the college has no statutory authority to do.

CSI attorney Robert Alexander said the proposed non-profit corporation could borrow money and raise funds to construct the museum. Once constructed, he added, the structure would be deeded to the college.

Taylor told the board the corporation could also apply for federal funds for museum construction which would not be directly available to the college.

In fact, Taylor told the board, he had already made application for federal funds in the name of the proposed corporation.

"I did this without board authority mainly because I had to make the federal application about a week ago," Taylor said.

He told the board that the corporation could be formed without the "blessing" of the board, "but I would like your sanction because the junior college district will take on the burden of operating the museum," he added.

Taylor estimated the cost of the proposed museum at $150,000.

He told the board that the non-profit corporation as proposed would be administered by a three-man board composed of himself, Norman Herrett and Twin Falls Bank and Trust President Curtis Eaton.

He said that although the corporation has not been formed Herrett and Eaton had agreed to serve as directors.

"I can say without reservation that the museum that Norman Herrett has developed... has to be 15 years ahead educationally," Taylor said. "It's fantastic, utterly fantastic. For us to let this thing go down the tube would be a disaster."

According to attorney Alexander, the first step in the formation of the proposed corporation would be the notice of an election of officers. The election would be open to any member of the public who wished to attend and vote, Alexander said today.

Taylor said construction funds for which he had applied would come from monies collected by the national bi-centennial commission through the sale of memorabilia and souvenirs.

According to the CSI staff, an application for $80,000 in construction funds was made April 17 to the American Revolution bi-centennial administration in the name of Historical Arts, Inc.

"The primary thrust right now is for a building to house the Herrett Museum," Taylor said Monday night. He added that the museum might eventually be expanded to house other collections of historical and cultural artifacts which may be donated to the college.

In other business Monday night, the CSI board:

— approved a motion to contract with the architect of the proposed Frontier Field Exhibition Center for electrical and mechanical systems and all other support equipment necessary to meet the statutory requirements for the construction of the field house.

The board's motion included approval of the spending of an additional $5,000 for electrical and mechanical design associated with the structure, on the condition that the architect oversee and inspect the construction of the support systems.

Bids for the field house shell, not including an electrical or heating system, are due May 6.

— heard a report by Taylor on the expansion next year of CSI's female athletic program.

Taylor told the board the girls' athletic program will be expanded under the requirements of federal legislation to move closer to a parity with the boys' athletic program.

Included in the expansion of the girls' program, Taylor said, will be the addition of girls basketball, baseball and volleyball competition.

Taylor said the expansion could be accomplished with existing staff but would cause some "feet scheduling problems" with the CSI gymnasium.

The federal requirements do not mean that equal amounts must be expended to fund girls' athletics on a par with boys' athletics but that the girls "should have a program available," Taylor told the board.

"Our program (for girls) will not be full-blown next year," he added.

Long haul out of desert

Weekend jaunt turns into 24-hour nightmare

By MIKE ROBERTSON
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — A Mountain Home family found how easily an Idaho desert road can turn into a muckhole after being stranded 24 hours in the Castleford desert last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry W. Watson and 3-year-old daughter Terry Jane left their Mountain Home Air Force Base home early Saturday morning for a leisurely afternoon ride.

Their little jaunt turned into a long 24-hour ordeal, and a cold overnight nightmare in the desert, over 30 miles south of Castleford and 50-some miles from Rogerson.

Their problem started "in-nocently enough" as they drove into the desert on back roads from Mountain Home, following frequent signs pointing to Rogerson.

The next morning Watson decided to walk out. He headed for Castleford. After walking for several hours, he was found by a group of 10 vehicles from the Magic Valley Four Wheel Drive Association who was using the desert road for a Sunday afternoon outing.

After picking Watson up, it took the group over an hour to get back to his car. Compounding the problem was snow and rain the night before, making the road even muddier.

The four wheelers easily pulled the station wagon out of the mire in several minutes, according to the four wheel drive group.

Then Mrs. Watson and Terry Jane were led and put into a fourwheeler to be taken out. The station wagon was chained to another fourwheeler for the trip out on the road which was six inches deep in mud. The car had to be pulled over 20 miles through the mud.

The Watsons were escorted on a search for fuel to Murphy's Hot Springs by the four-wheel drive group.

Mrs. Watson said they had "never experienced the desert before—having come to Mountain Home from West Virginia."

Many persons haven't been as lucky as the Watsons with the Castleford desert.

Gooding aides name Alastra

GOODING — James Alastra, manager of the First Security Bank here, was named to the Gooding City Council Monday night.

Alastra, appointed by Mayor Leo Rice and approved unanimously by the council, succeeds Paul Klingler. He will serve on the council until the next regular election and may seek reelection at that time.

Klingler resigned at the City Council meeting two weeks ago because he has moved outside of the city limits. It had been suggested by some of the council that property to which Klingler has moved be annexed to the city so he could continue serving. The council decided against the move.

In other action, the Gooding City Council voted approval to a base bid of $66,000 from Nielsen and Co., Twin Falls, for development of a joint city and Gooding school district recreation park. The development will include three tennis courts and a lighted baseball park and will be developed with local and state funding. The park is located adjacent to the school property and will serve school and public recreation.

Purchase of a small utility pickup truck was approved with the bid going to Gooding Ford Co. for $2,969.67. This was the low bid received in an earlier bid opening.

George Hansen plea bargains

Judge George Hart Jr., who sentenced Hansen, heard the charge that Hansen did not report the $2,150 collected and concluded apparent intent to violate the act, Ruffitt said.

But he wondered what was done with a separate offer of evidence which showed that Hansen's personal campaign report, it was included in his campaign committee's report.

Ruffitt said late filing of the June 10 primary campaign report was common among candidates. "In fact," he said, "in Idaho primary congressional hopefuls Jay Cox, Ken Miller, Max Hansen and Keith Holte all filed this report late, but were not put to trial."

Ruffitt said he and Hansen's other attorney Jay Longstrege are considering a number of possible ways to keep the congressman out of jail at least while he is in office.

"The constitution provides that congressmen 'shall in all cases, except in treason, felony and breach of the peace be privileged from arrests during their attendance at the session of their respective houses,'" he said.

Ruffitt added, however, that there are a number of legal questions as to the meaning of this passage, including the meaning of "session."

Another course which might be taken is to ask the court for a reconsideration of the case, he said.

Meanwhile, a special meeting of the Idaho State Republican Central Committee has been called to discuss Hansen's jail sentence.

Vice Chairman Charles (Chick) Luntz, Buhl, said he issued the call also to fully air the ramifications of the enforcement and compliance of the state and federal campaign disclosure laws.

"Our investigation reveals that the campaign laws are being unfairly and discriminatorily applied," he said.

Board meeting set

There will be reports from George Furscher, Burley, regional airport chairman; Tom Silvers, Twin Falls, legislative chairman; L. James Koutnik, Twin Falls, land-use chairman, and Vern Ravenscroft, Tumble, state and federal land-use chairman.

All chamber members throughout the Magic Valley are urged to attend.

TIME-NEWS WRITER
BURLEY — Burley City Council voted unanimously Monday night to raise electric bills by as much as 60 per cent over the next several years.

The average rate increase will be 15 per cent. The highest rate increases will go to customers that "have had a break" in the past, according to a Bonneville Power spokesman attending the council's session.

The new electric rate schedule was designed by a consultant, Robert Mooney, Corvallis, Ore. Mooney told the council the rate changes were designed to raise an additional 15 per cent in revenues to pay for the higher cost of power furnished by BPA, and to meet other capital requirements of the city-owned system.

Mooney told the council the rate changes also:

- seek to equalize revenue generated to pay for the increase in wholesale BPA costs;
- simplify the present rate schedules;
- eliminate promotional aspects of the current rates;
- increase minimum monthly charges to appropriate levels, and

- to help bring commercial charges closer to residential charges with the same energy consumption.

Mooney told the council the most difficult policy decision in the rate package was the elimination of the promotional rates.

"However," Mooney said, "with the national energy picture as it is today and with your costs of providing each additional kilowatt hour increasing, we strongly believe the justification for promotional rates no longer exists."

After a brief discussion, the council gave approval to Mooney's proposed rate schedules.

However, before the rate changes become effective, an ordinance changing the rates must be read three times. If then approved the rate changes will become effective with the first June billing.

As proposed — the average residential customer will receive an increase of from 12.5 to 16.7 per cent;

- the promotional residential electric water heater rate will be eliminated, and these customers will fall into the single residential class. Customers now being served in the class will find bills going up from 14 to 30 per cent;

- the residential all-electric rate schedule will be phased out also placing the customer in the single residential rate class. The phaseout will take two years, with 10 to 20 per cent rate increases in 1975, and 11 to 20 per cent increases in 1976.

Currently a customer in the residential class using about 430 kilowatt hours of electricity per month pays about $8.80. The same bill would be increased to $10.10.

A residential customer with a water heater using about 500 kw/h per month now pays $8.20 a month for electricity. That bill would be $10.20 when the rate increase goes into effect.

A customer in the residential "all-electric" class pays about $27.30 a month for 2100 kw/h of electricity.

When the all-electric rate schedule is eliminated, in 1976, the same customer would pay about $31.80.

Commercial customers will also end up in one rate schedule. Those customers under "schedule 4, commercial" will receive increases from 6 to 16 per cent.

The "schedule 4A commercial all-electric" class will be phased out over a three-year period. Currently the "4A" customers pay rates from 10 to 60 per cent below other commercial customers, Mooney said. They will be placed in the regular "schedule 4" class by 1977.

In 1975, "4A" customers would receive a rate increase from 20 to 30 per cent. In 1976, the same customers would again receive a 10 to 30 per cent rate hike, depending on their demand levels and load factor.

In 1977 the schedule would be eliminated and all such customers would fall under the regular commercial rate. According to Mooney, large customers with over 50,000 kilowatt hours per month will receive a 5 per cent rate hike the last year, while the smaller customers, with consumption less than 20,000 kw/h per month, will receive increases up to 20 per cent.

Gem spuds, live cattle, hog futures post gains

Courtesy Sinclair & Co., CHICAGO — Idaho potato futures advanced Monday while Maine wound up mixed. In other commodity futures trading, meats and sugar were generally stronger while grains eased off.

The May delivery of Idaho russets closed at 7.45 per hundredweight, an advance of a nickel over Friday's close.

Commodity news Service said, Maine futures closed mixed with the old crop May contract giving up earlier gains and finishing 10 points down. New crop options ended with gains of 9 to 15 points. Imbalances in current fresh and processed stocks continued to weigh on the May contract. The market failed to penetrate the 420 level basis nearby May.

Supported by the trade, the world sugar market was firm and closed 1.19 cent to 65 cent over the 28.00 level. Weather conditions in major European growing areas continued to be a factor of concern to dealers. Sugar 10 saw only one higher and closed 1.3 cents higher, while Sugar 12 didn't trade and ended nominally at 1.30 cent above last Friday.

The world spot price was raised .75 cent to 26.5 cents a pound. The two domestic spots were also hiked. 75 cent to 28.5 cents a pound.

Live cattle futures hit the highest levels in seven months as the new spot contract, June, reached into 41.00 territory. The final quotes ranged from 20 cents higher in the back months to 120 higher in August. Volume was active with just under 8,000 contracts changing hands. Both live and dressed markets were higher. Traders anticipate a modest shortage of choice deliverable cattle in the next 30 to 90 days.

Dressed beef prices are just under 70 cents and as major chain buyers begin stocking up further price advances are anticipated.

Feeder cattle futures were mixed in light trading.

The strong cattle market pulled live hog futures higher, and they closed near the day's highs with sharp gains in most contracts. Gains ranged from 102 points in the new lead June contract to 20 points in April 1975. Volume, however, continued light.

Pork belly futures registered new season highs, closing limit up for the third straight day. All but February and May 1976 held limit gains through the close. Volume continued brisk with an estimated 6,800 contracts traded. Cash bellies continued steady and strong.

Wheat futures traded actively but closed lower, with 3 to 5 cents losses. Chicago 1975-1976 bushel reduction for the week to 840,000 bushels on hand. Chile, Brazil and Japan are expected to be in the market. So, Chicago cash basis was nominally unchanged at 10 cents over May for hard wheat and 8 cents over for soft red.

Calf basis was 25 cents down at 35 cents over Kansas City May.

Weekend and Monday trade inactive; buyers indifferent to new business; most shipping on previous purchases; few sales; slaughter steers and heifers steady with late last week; no confirmed sales on any other class.

Slaughter steers high and mostly choice, 1,000-1,500 lb. yield grade mostly 3 and 4; 1,000-1,500 lb. yield grade mostly 3 and 4; 1,000-1,500 lb. yield grade mostly 3 and 4.

Slaughter heifers high and mostly choice, 950-975 lb. 41.50-42.00.

JOLIEF, ILL. (UPI) — Livestock: Cattle: 4,000; trade active; prices 50-100 higher; heifers 50-75 higher; choice and prime steers 45-50-60; choice 42-50-55; good and choice 39-50-55; choice/heifers 40-50-45; good and choice 37-40-45; utility cows 21-25-30; calves 14-20-25-30.

Motorist eludes TF police chase

TWIN FALLS — An unknown motorist led Twin Falls police on a wild chase through town Saturday night before eluding the pursuit in Jerome County.

According to chief of police Frank Barnett, the chase began about 11:30 p.m. Saturday when police attempted to stop two vehicles for drag racing along 2nd Ave. South.

One of the vehicles pulled over, Barnett said, but the second accelerated and began to lead one patrol car on a high speed chase through Twin Falls during the course of which several cars were forced off the road and several stop signs were ignored.

After leading the patrol car around town, the speeder headed east on Addison Ave. East, crossed the Hansen Bridge and lost the police pursuit in the rural flint area along Highway 25. Barnett said the chase reportedly reached 110 miles per hour or more. He said he did not know whether the speeder simply out-ran police vehicles or whether the lights were cut off and the vehicle turned into a field.

An abandoned vehicle matching the description of the late model Mercury which was being pursued was reportedly found by a farmer in the Hunt area this morning, Barnett said.

He said the second driver in the drag race had not identified the escaped driver. The abandoned vehicle was registered to a party in Twin Falls, Barnett added.

He said the vehicle had not been reported stolen. Contact with the owner of the vehicle will be made later today, the chief said.

Reminder issued

SEATTLE, Wash. — About 100 days remain for veterans discharged since 1970 to take advantage of the new law-cost Veterans Group Life Insurance (VGLI). Applications and first premium payments must be received before Aug. 2, 1975.

The Veterans Administration issued the reminder which applies to all veterans who were discharged between April 3, 1971 and August 1, 1974.

The new program offers up to $20,000 for a monthly premium of only $3.40 for veterans under 35, and for those 35 and over the maximum coverage is $6,000 in monthly. It is a non-renewable policy designed as interim protection during readjustment to civilian life, VA said.

Another important advantage of buying VGLI, VA said, is that it reinstates the veteran's right to convert his Servicemen's Group Life Insurance policy to an individual policy at a standard rate, regardless of his health or physical condition. Normally, this privilege terminates 120 days after discharge. Those covered by VGLI can convert on termination of the five-year VGLI policy.

A pamphlet prepared by the VA insurance center in Philadelphia gives complete information on the program. The pamphlet and application forms can be obtained from local VA offices or by writing to the Office of Servicemen's Group Life Insurance, 212 Washington St., Newark, N.J. 07102.

Minnesotan 'waves' flag

TWIN FALLS — Jack H. Poulsen, Minneapolis, Minn., is a "flag waver" and is proud of it.

He and his wife, Artis, have traveled some 60,000 miles through 31 states promoting their "National Fly the Flag Crusade."

The organization began in 1968 when Poulsen, a truck driver, and a few other patriotic residents of Minnesota had 16,000 bumper stickers printed to promote flag displays.

There are now 4,000 members in Minneapolis alone. The current crusade is aimed toward a flag displayed at every home, business and public building for 1976, the bicentennial year.

Poulsen and his wife were in Twin Falls last week to meet with officials and civic groups to further their effect. The stop was enroute back home after a month's leave from his job as a truck driver.

"That doesn't mean I am through promoting the American Flag and what it stands for," Poulsen said.

"Wherever I go I hand out stickers, cards and decals urging the display of the flag."

Poulsen stopped in Boise to present Gov. Cecil Andrus a flag and special flag pole.

Flags are given free to senior citizens centers and anyone who cannot afford one, he said. But the Crusade organization also sells flags and poles at a slight profit. The money is used to print promotional material and purchase flags for donation to worthy groups and individuals.

Anyone wishing to join the Crusade may contact Jack H. or Artis Poulsen, Box 20331, Bloomington, Minn., 55420, or telephone 866-0643.

Tax tables set

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The IRS has announced new withholding tables reflecting the reduced amounts of income tax to be withheld from employees' wages after April 20.

The new tables, prescribed by the Department of the Treasury, are required by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975, which was enacted March 29.

The IRS urged employees to check their withholding under the new tables because even under the new tables many employees may continue to be overwithheld, and some employees may be underwithheld. Adjustments to withholding may be made by filing a new form W-4.

Income tax withholding will be reduced for the remaining eight months of 1975 as a result of the reductions in income tax provided by the new law. The new Circular E is being printed and will be mailed shortly by the IRS to the nation's 4 million employers.

Because of the short time available to put the new withholding tables into effect, the IRS said that employers who make a good faith effort to accomplish the changes as soon as practicable will be deemed to be in compliance.

The reductions in tax withholding result primarily from:

An increase in the low income allowance from $1,200 to $1,600 for a single person or head-of-household, and $1,900 for married couple filing a joint return.

An increase in the standard deduction from 15 percent to 16 percent, with the maximum increased from $2,000 to $2,300 for a single person or head-of-household, and to $2,600 for a married couple filing a joint return.

A new tax credit of $30 for the taxpayer, his or her spouse, and each dependent.

A new earned-income-tax credit.

IT'S SPRINKLER SEASON! SEE OUR ECONOMICAL EASY WAY TO INSTALL RAIN JET SYSTEMS

THE RAIN JET 800 SERIES ADJUSTABLE POLYPROPYLENE

Modern landscaping demands that a sprinkler head confine the water pattern to a given size and shaped area. Therefore the 800 series adjustable line came into being. The adjustment valve is housed in the inner chamber so as not to distort the nozzle pattern. The adjustment takes place in the flow channel, not at the nozzle. The Polypropylene casing embodies some very impressive properties: high impact, no rust, no corrosion, no electrolysis, no lining, unaffected by temperature change, unaffected by sunlight — rugged and dependable.
